SPECIALTY SUPPLY SOLUTIONS

HEALTHIER,
BETTER

HB specialty Foods is committed to promoting sustainable practices on the farm to help our grower partners nourish their soils and build a sustainable model for the future.

We work with a network of growers that practice organic, no-till, and regenerative cropping models and can help you source a variety of ingredients grown on these farms.

FARM TO FORK

Many consumers want to know where their food comes from, and HB Specialty Foods can build “Turn-Key” supply chain solutions for companies looking to connect to growers. As part of this turn-key supply chain model, we can find the key partners you need to turn the crops into the finished products you need.

Whether you are interested in supporting sustainable agriculture, or need to build a direct-to-farm supply model, HB Specialty Foods can collaborate with your team to achieve positive outcomes.

REGENERATIVE AND SUSTAINABLE

We are committed to a better future for farmers and our food, that's why we're constantly seeking ways to incorporate regenerative ingredients and regenerative thinking in our business.

Whether you're knowledgeable about these practices or if you need a 101, our team can help you navigate the strategic partnerships.

Maybe you've heard of Natural, Sustainable, and Organic... but what is Regenerative Agriculture?

While the term has existed for decades, regenerative agriculture has increasingly shown up in academic research since the early to mid 2010s in the fields of environmental science, plant science, and ecology. The principles of regenerative agriculture include building soil health and fertility, increasing water percolation and retention, increasing biodiversity and ecosystem health, and reducing carbon emissions and current atmospheric CO2 levels... but in layman terms, it simply means to leave the land better than when you started. Regenerative farming provides a powerful solution to many modern challenges in our food system and has become a goal of companies both large and small.

This photo is meant to illustrate why “sustainable” methods may simply not be enough. Over a hundred years of extractive methods of farming has led to the degeneration of our soils and watersheds, therefore “sustainable” practices can leave the land in a cycle of survival. The idea? REGENERATE where needed and THEN look at sustaining a level of resilience, health and vitality in our farmlands.

Regenerative agriculture builds and restores ecosystems to improve the overall health of the land.

THE LEADING EDGE: Nutrient Density

is where we think the science and trends are going and that’s why we co-sponsored the 10th annual Soil and Nutrition Conference in 2021. The organization behind the event is a non-profit called the Bionutrient Food Association \(BFA\) and you can check out interesting lab data via their campaign, at The Bionutrient Institute.

As soils and diversity of crops have seen a decline, it is this type of work that interests us in the healthy future of farming and food. We appreciate the BFA’s long standing commitment to keeping all research and data available as an open source platform for public benefit. Our collaboration gives us access to the valuable relationship of working with grower partners that opt-in by submitting their crop samples to BFA’s labs and helping us all understand the metrics behind the best practices in biological farming to bring nutrient density to the forefront of how our food is grown.
